I really enjoy the curriculum. The content is all relevant and interlinked which gets the children hooked and engrossed in their learning. The content covered, such as Syrian refugees and Black Lives Matter, allows children to challenge stereotypes and gain new perspective on the world. Even the children have commented on how much they enjoy how they can make connections between subjects such as learning about Islam during a topic on Syria. Children are fully engaged and the impact is clear in the quality of their work as they confidently are able to get ideas by drawing upon the wealth of learning they have gained – Year 6 Teacher

I like every subject so I really like the curriculum. Lots of topics go together and I like it a lot. In RE we are doing the fath of Islam and it links with Syria. We also go back and revisit things. Now we are doing Syrian Civil War and in Year 5 we did World War 2. This helps me draw comparisons between the two. I also enjoy using Showbie and my Learning Journey as it means that I can listen to voice notes and red respond to feedback. – Year 6 pupil.

Curriculum here is definitely the best way I have ever taught topic lessons. It is really inspirational and cross-curricular and I enjoy the freedom of being able to focus on different subjects per half term for topic that link better instead of making tenuous connections. Furthermore, the philosophical approach is exactly what our children need. With the curriculum maps supporting planning, the progression throughout school is clear to see and the quality of the children's learning journey is so much better now they see the connections in their work and view lessons as building towards a purpose. I am generally very inspired to teach across the curriculum subjects. – Year 5 Teacher

I like my topic because we do a lot of art and I really enjoy that. We also do lots of other subjects and we learn lots of new skills. All the things we do link. I feel proud of my Learning Journey and the work in it. – Year 5 pupil

We cover a lot of subjects now – I particularly like maths, art and computing. Each week I learn something new and we practise what we learnt before. In Spanish, we learnt to ask 'What is your name?' and then we practised it the next week and also learnt how to ask where someone lives. – Year 4 pupil.

Our topic is friendship and this helps us learn how to be kind to other people. We cover lots of subjects in the week and we always learn lots of new things. In Science, we explore different things and do experiments and in RE we learn about religions which is really interesting because I don't know much about them and it is fun to learn more – Year 3 pupil.
